Biographical Note

Charles Kleibacker, “Master of the Bias Cut,” began his career in journalism, writing copy for Gimbels and then DePinna in the 1940’s. He then moved into the world of fashion design, working for first Sosenko and Hildegarde, then Castillo at Lanvin in Paris, and finally Nettie Rosenstein, before opening his own business in New York in 1960.

While designing his own line of clothing, he also worked with a number of companies, promoting both their products and his designs. He worked with Vogue on their “Sew It Yourself” patterns, with Dupont promoting the Qiana brand, and with the American Silk Mills in the 1970’s. In the early 1980’s he worked with the Taubman Company taking different fashion shows on the road.

Kleibacker also taught a number of workshops at various colleges and universities, including Mount Mary College, Stephens College, Georgia College and numerous others.

In 1984 he became a visiting designer in Ohio State University’s Department of Home Economics, and then became the Designer in Residence. He also acted as Curator of their Historic Costume Collection and was instrumental in developing and promoting that collection. He left OSU in 1995.

Scope and Content

The bulk of the papers relate to Kleibacker’s years at Ohio State University, the workshops he hosted at other colleges, and promotional work he did with companies. There are also numerous materials on the exhibits he curated and Fashion Shows he organized.

Note: Where Charles Kleibacker had given folders titles, his titles were retained, and the contents were broken down into smaller folders.
